Set up App lab in building 8 for app development pathway. Also partnering in sales and marketing management, retail management, human resource management. Hospitality and tourism management got their certificate approved. Got an extension on regional plan (which provides funding for strong workforce program). Have been working with SAP on technology development. Got to see how SAP employees got to engage. SAP is pushing to partner with academia to develop methods of problem solving and other skills that would benefit local companies. Workshops being developed (Design Thinking Deep Dive). Komadina: How many spots? Vizenor: 25. Not too big not too small. Will be hosting training session at CTTL. Keep an eye out on launch board. New metrics tab on guided pathways and equity. Gives information for our own programs and compare to other regions.	Info Discussion

			Shaw: What should I get out of Design Thinking Deep Dive Vizenor: companies are looking for certain mindsets. Workshop will help to design lesson plans to reinforce ways to approach problems in the way that companies are looking for. If we can build up this way of thinking, they'll be able to acclimate more quickly. Shaw: Are there particular disciplines that should hear about this? Vizenor: Workshops open to any discipline. Looking to teach across all disciplines to see the effects. Shaw: What are we doing to aggressively pull for this training? Vizenor: Looking for a core set of faculty to champion trainings. Could bring it to inquiry teams. We also have Apple Technology coaches to help faculty to implement Apple Technology into the classroom. We have carts of iPads to go with this technology. Dual enrollments are great opportunities to develop a strong workforce. Wimmer: These are being implemented to get funding. Funding is based on point system. Vizenor: 70% funding comes from point system.
